

“IF YOU ARE INJURED ON THE JOB”

The only way to assure yourself of full protection of the Colorado Workmen's Compensation Law is:

1. Report at Once - Even though the injury may not seem serious. The accident must be reported to the employer, foreman, or first aid department within two days from the occurrence. If possible, have a witness present when you report the accident.
2. After Receiving First Aid Treatment - You have the right to a licensed physician of the Company's choice for continued treatment.
3. Get the Facts of the Accident - Obtain names of all witnesses and statements in writing as soon as possible.
4. Signing of Papers and Documents - Do not sign any papers in blank or anything which you do not fully understand.
5. File a Claim - Payment of medical expenses by an employer or insurance carrier, either under the Workman's Compensation Act or the Colorado Occupational Disease Disability Act, does not constitute an admission of a liability. A claim must be filed with the Division of Labor within three years from the date of the accident to protect your rights to reopen the case for a six year period.

REMEMBER: You do not know the law; your Union can provide you with full protection under the law if you follow these rules and contact your Union Representative.

DENVER AREA LABOR FEDERATION, AFL-CIO